Book Summary

This is a beautifully illustrated Jewish folk tale about a little boy and his tailor grandfather. Starting with a baby blanket the grandfather fashioned, this expert tailor turns it into a coat, then a tie, then a hankie and finally into a button. This modern adaptation has become a contemporary classic.

Discussion Prompts

- 1) Can you remember all the things Joseph's grandfather made from the blanket?
- 2) What is your favourite item of clothing?
- 3) Where do your clothes come from? Who do you think makes them?
